neagra dalist Enthusios In March, 2001, the Riso-Hudson Enneagram Type Indicator (RHETI, Version 2.5) was officially validated by independent research. The research, the subject of a doctoral dissertation at a state university, concluded that the RHETI is "valid and reliable" as a test instrument with "solid psychometrics." Internal-consistency reliability scores indicate that the RHETI ranges from 56% to 82% accurate for the various types, with an overall accuracy of 72%. The RHETI is the only validated, true Enneagram-based questionnaire available, and the only test to be independently validated by an impartial researcher. It also compares well to the standard NEO PI-R test. More information about the RHETI is available from The Enneagram Institute and online at our website. You may also take the RHETI on our website at www.EnneagramInstitute.com for only $10.

Subsequent editions of this Offprint will contain revised versions of the RHETI, as required by on-going research and testing.

Directions

The Riso-Hudson Enneagram Type Indicator (Version 2.5) consists of 144 paired statements. It is a questionnaire which requires you to choose the statement in each pair that best describes you as you have been throughout most of your life.

Mark an X in the box to the right of the statement you have selected. For example, if you feel that a statement such as "I have been friendly and outgoing" fits you better than "I have been shy and quiet," mark an X in the box to the right of the first statement. You may, at times, have been somewhat shy and quiet, or you may not always have been friendly and outgoing. But if you were forced to choose between the two, which statement more accurately reflects your past general attitudes and behavior? It has helped people to follow these instructions by recalling how they were in their early twenties, from 20-25 years of age. (Younger people should answer on the same principle, although focusing on their recent history.)

Some pairs of statements compare subtle differences between the personality types, and choosing one over the other requires you to think carefully about which response has been more true of you. In some of the pairs, both statements may almost be equally true. If you reflect carefully, however, you will find that one of the statements has been more true of you than the other. Choose this statement in each pair. You may want to skip particularly "difficult" pairs and return to them after you have finished the entire test. Or, you may wish to review your choices for the whole test after you have finished. Feel free to change an original response if, after further reflection, you feel that another response is more appropriate. While it is useful to wrestle with "difficult" pairs of statements, there may be 2-5 pairs that simply do not apply to you, and you may skip these.

Read the statements carefully before responding, but do not try to "over-analyze" them. You will get more accurate results if you answer spontaneously rather than think of extreme situations in which both statements might possibly be true of you. Remember that there are no "right" answers and that no personality type is better than any other. Furthermore, the RHETI does not indicate how healthy or unhealthy a person is, so relax and answer the statements simply and honestly.

If you have difficulty discovering your personality type because two or more top scores are very close, you might find it helpful to discuss your responses with someone who knows you well, such as a spouse, close friend, or therapist. After you have taken the Riso-Hudson Enneagram Type Indicator, please see Personality Types (1996) for full descriptions, Understanding the Enneagram for more information and applications, and the complete text of Discovering Your Personality Type for more about interpreting the RHETI.

If the instructions are followed, this test is approximately 80-87% accurate for discovering your main personality type. In some cases, it may be necessary to take the RHETI several times. Naturally, if you have been in therapy or a psychological or spiritual practice of some sort, you will have developed over time. Nevertheless, your core self will remain the same since you do not actually change your personality type. By responding to the statements as you have been most of your life, you are attempting to find out what your "core" self is.

Scoring Instructions

Add the X's marked in Column A, Column B, Column C, and so forth, through Column I. Place the number of X's you have made in the boxes below for columns A through I. If you have marked one box in each pair of statements and have added the number of X's correctly, the sum will be 144. If not, go back and recheck for mistakes either in counting X's or in arithmetic.

Each column corresponds to a personality type, as given below. Please note that they have been randomized and are not in numerical order.

Columns	A	В	С	D	E	F	G	H	Ι
Numerical Values
Personality Type	Nine	Six	Three	One	Four	Two	Eight	Five	Seven

Mark the proper numerical value on the Score Sheet on the next page. Note that the personality types have been arranged in numerical order beginning with types Two, Three, and Four (in The Feeling Triad), and so forth. Connect the marks you have made to produce a graph that represents the various values for the nine Functions within your personality. (For more about interpreting the Functions in your full personality profile, see Discovering Your Personality Type, pp. 80ff.) The second Score Sheet is for analyzing your scores according to The Hornevian Groups (see Personality Types, revised edition, 1996, pp. 433-436). These Groups indicate whether the overall orientation of your personality is assertive, compliant, or withdrawn. Note that the columns on this Score Sheet have been reorganized for these three Groups.

Discovering which of the nine types is your basic personality type is the object of this test. Your highest score will indicate your basic type, or it will almost certainly be among the top 2-3 scores. To confirm your results, read the complete descriptions in Personality Types and Understanding the Enneagram.

If properly taken, the Riso-Hudson Enneagram Type Indicator will have accurately assessed your basic personality type. If the results you have obtained are unclear, please review your responses to see if, on further reflection, you wish to change any of them.

The Nine Personality Types of the Enneagram

- 1. The Reformer. The principled, idealistic type. Ones are conscientious and ethical, with a strong sense of right and wrong. They are teachers, crusaders, and advocates for change: always striving to improve things, but afraid of making a mistake. Well-organized, orderly, and fastidious, they try to maintain high standards, but can slip into being critical and perfectionistic. They typically have problems with resentment and impatience. At their Best: wise, discerning, realistic, and noble. Can be morally heroic.
- 2. The Helper. The caring, interpersonal type. Twos are empathetic, sincere, and warm-hearted. They are friendly, generous, and self-sacrificing, but can also be sentimental, flattering, and people-pleasing. They are well-meaning and driven to be close to others, but can slip into doing things for others in order to be needed. They typically have problems with possessiveness and with acknowledging their own needs. At their Best: unselfish and altruistic, they have unconditional love for others.
- 3. The Achiever. The adaptable, success-oriented type. Threes are self-assured, attractive, and charming. Ambitious, competent, and energetic, they can also be status-conscious and highly driven for advancement. They are diplomatic and poised, but can also be overly concerned with their image and what others think of them. They typically have problems with workaholism and competitiveness. At their Best: self-accepting, authentic, everything they seem to be—role models who inspire others.
- 4. The Individualist. The introspective, romantic type. Fours are self-aware, sensitive, and reserved. They are emotionally honest, creative, and personal, but can also be moody and self-conscious. Withholding themselves from others due to feeling vulnerable and defective, they can also feel disdainful and exempt from ordinary ways of living. They typically have problems with melancholy, self-indulgence, and self-pity. At their Best: inspired and highly creative, they are able to renew themselves and transform their experiences.
- 5. The Investigator. The perceptive, cerebral type. Fives are alert, insightful, and curious. They are able to concentrate and focus on developing complex ideas and skills. Independent, innovative, and inventive, they can also become preoccupied with their thoughts and imaginary constructs. They become detached, yet high-strung and intense. They typically have problems with eccentricity, nihilism, and isolation. At their Best: visionary pioneers, often ahead of their time, and able to see the world in an entirely new way.

The Riso-Hudson Enneagram Type Names

- 6. The Loyalist. The committed, security-oriented type. Sixes are reliable, hard-working, responsible, and trustworthy. Excellent "troubleshooters," they foresee problems and foster cooperation, but can also become defensive, evasive, and anxious—running on stress while complaining about it. They can be cautious and indecisive, but also reactive, defiant and rebellious. They typically have problems with self-doubt and suspicion. At their Best: internally stable and self-reliant, courageously championing themselves and others.
- 7. The Enthusiast. The busy, productive type. Sevens are extroverted, optimistic, versatile, and spontaneous. Playful, high-spirited, and practical, they can also misapply their many talents, becoming over-extended, scattered, and undisciplined. They constantly seek new and exciting experiences, but can become distracted and exhausted by staying on the go. They typically have problems with impatience and impulsiveness. At their Best: they focus their talents on worthwhile goals, becoming appreciative, joyous, and satisfied.
- 8. The Challenger. The powerful, aggressive type. Eights are self-confident, strong, and assertive. Protective, resourceful, straight-talking, and decisive, but can also be ego-centric and domineering. Eights feel they must control their environment, especially people, sometimes becoming confrontational and intimidating. Eights typically have problems with their tempers and with allowing themselves to be vulnerable. At their Best: self-mastering, they use their strength to improve others' lives, becoming heroic, magnanimous, and inspiring.
- 9. The Peacemaker. The easy-going, self-effacing type. Nines are accepting, trusting, and stable. They are usually creative, optimistic, and supportive, but can also be too willing to go along with others to keep the peace. They want everything to go smoothly and be without conflict, but they can also tend to be complacent, simplifying problems and minimizing anything upsetting. They typically have problems with inertia and stubbornness. At their Best: indomitable and all-embracing, they are able to bring people together and heal conflicts.
